

Hospital Bond Issue Defeated By Voters

The $2.6 million Bothwell Hospital expansion bond issue was defeated Tuesday in one of the lightest elections in the city's history. The issue received 57.7 per cent of the vote.

Only 3,570 Sedalians went to the polls; 2,059 voted yes and 1,511 said no — short of the 66.7 per cent majority required for passage. There are about 11,360 registered voters in the city.

There were 337 favorable absentee ballots and 22 against the bond issue, according to City Clerk Ralph Dedrick, who made the election results available.

The third precinct of the First Ward gave the expansion proposal the strongest support, with 182 voters saying yes and only 94 opposing the issue.

Voters in the First Ward in general seemed more favorable toward the proposition. The total affirmative vote there came to 635, with 361 in opposition. The Second Ward gave the bond issue 249 yes votes and 278 no's. Third Ward, 369 yes, 487 no; Fourth Ward, 469 yes, 363 no.

Despite the defeat of the issue, L. Don Feeback, administrator of the hospital, said he had felt Sedalians would pass the bond issue. "I thought it was a good, fair cause," he said.

"We will hold a board meeting to assess the situation and go from there," Feeback said Tuesday night. Earlier indications from hospital officials pointed to possible resubmission of the bond issue if it were defeated.

The hospital board will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Feeback said.

"We're not going to dwell on feeling sorry for ourselves," he said. "We have to plunge ahead."

Had the bond issue passed, it would have helped solve problems of over-crowding, shortages of space, inadequate X-ray operating facilities and limitations of staff. Passage of the bond issue would have meant a levy of 62 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

A breakdown of voting results follows:

FIRST WARD
	Yes	No
1st Precinct	149	88
2nd Precinct	147	109
3rd Precinct	182	94
4th Precinct	157	70

Sponsors Of Curbs 'Aid Reds'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asst. Republican Leader Robert P. Griffin charged today that Senate supporters of curbs on U.S. activities in Cambodia are giving "aid and comfort to the enemy."

Griffin, Michigan Republican, made the assertion after Republican Leader Hugh Scott praised his Democratic counterpart, Mike Mansfield, for stressing that sponsors of the Cooper-Church curbing amendment are trying to work "in concert" with the President by backing up his determination to get U.S. forces out of Cambodia by July 1.

"I am hopeful we can work out a consensus rather than a confrontation," said Scott who has been working to resolve the issue. He indicated that any restrictions effective after July 1 might be helpful in reaching an accommodation.

But Griffin charged that the pending amendment "cuts off options and ties the hands of the commander in chief in areas where he has responsibilities and does make what are essentially battlefield decisions."

"I know it is not the intention of the sponsors to aid the enemy," he added. "Of course it is not. But it does aid the enemy."

"This is very dangerous ground," the Michigan Republican continued. "It gives aid and comfort to the enemy. We shouldn't do it."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said he hopes for "an accommodation," adding "there is nothing here to compromise." He is co-sponsor of the proposed amendment with Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky.

Mansfield said Tuesday "some sort of accommodation" might still be reached in the struggle to cut off funds for operations in Cambodia.

In spite of Mansfield's statement, there has been no indication the White House intends to back off from its stand that, as commander in chief, the President has the unrestricted right to use American troops as he did in sending U.S. ground forces into Cambodia.

Administration supporters, apparently outnumbered by the issue came down to the show-down stage, have sufficient numbers to keep the debate going for a long time—possibly right up to the June 30 date set by President Nixon for withdrawal of the U.S. force currently in Cambodia.

Last Enemy Sanctuary In Cambodia Attacked

SAIGON (AP) — Thousands of South Vietnamese infantrymen opened a new front in Cambodia today, assaulting the last of the known North Vietnamese and Viet Cong sanctuaries near the border.

The South Vietnamese Defense Ministry said the operation was under way at least 10 miles inside Cambodia, west of the Bu Prang and Duc Lap Special Forces camps which North Vietnamese troops laid siege to last year. The area is opposite Vietnam's southern Central Highlands and about 125 miles northeast of Saigon.

It was the 13th allied front opened in Cambodia. The South Vietnamese infantrymen went in after massive raids by the U.S. Air Force's big B52 bombers.

U.S. helicopters began landing several thousand South Vietnamese infantrymen from the 23rd Division and their American advisers in the thickly jungled region at dawn. A U.S. spokesman said probably less than 100 advisers were taking part.

"There are no U.S. ground forces involved in the operation," the U.S. Command said, adding that U.S. support of the operation included "helicopter and logistics support, tactical air, artillery and advisers."

The drive was preceded by nearly 100 B52 raids along the border in the past four days to soften up the suspected North Vietnamese bunkers and gun positions.

Field reports said the South Vietnamese had made no contact by afternoon and were consolidating their positions and preparing for a night bivouac.

The new operation is an extension of the sweep which the South Vietnamese 22nd Infantry Division is making in the Se San area to the north of today's landing.

Between 25,000 and 30,000 South Vietnamese troops and more than 10,000 Americans now are operating inside Cambodia along a 600-mile stretch of border.

At the southern end of the frontier, a task force of more than 10,000 South Vietnamese troops with armored cars, gunboats and U.S. warplanes in support, pushed deeper into southern Cambodia today after smashing a North Vietnamese base camp and sampan fleet. South Vietnamese military headquarters announced.

In a drive launched Sunday, the big land and river force is trying to destroy base camps from which the North Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division attacks South Vietnam's southernmost provinces and the sampans in which it moves about the delta area's network of rivers and canals.

The three-prong force is moving northward, along Highways 2 and 3 and the Bassac River, from the southernmost stretch of the Vietnamese-Cambodian border between Ha Tien and Tinh Bien.

A South Vietnamese commune said 96 North Vietnamese soldiers were killed Tuesday and 100 sampans and 30 storage huts were destroyed.

Eight South Vietnamese troops were reported killed and 25 wounded.

Police Court Is the Scene Of Jury Trial

The prosecution rested its case at noon Wednesday in what Police Chief William Miller said was the only jury trial held in Municipal Court during his 14 years on the force.

A jury was selected at 9 a.m. Wednesday to hear the case of Rosalee Scharfer, Knob Noster, charged with petit larceny after an incident at the Tempo Store in the Thompson Hills Shopping Center, March 25.

According to testimony presented by witnesses for the city, Mrs. Scharfer allegedly took a baby's sleeper suit, valued at less than $50, from a counter in the store and placed it in her purse, after taking it out of its package.

The court was recessed at noon until 12:45 p.m., when the defense was to call its witnesses.

Condemnation From U.N. Turned Down By Israel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel has rejected a U.N. Security Council condemnation of its biggest raid yet into Lebanon, saying it will continue to retaliate against Arab attacks.

The council approved a resolution Tuesday night sharply rebuking Israel for the attack May 12 on Arab guerrilla bases in the foothills of Mt. Hermon. The Israelis said they killed 30 guerrillas and captured 15 in the 32-hour operation.

The resolution, declaring that such attacks could "no longer be tolerated," was approved 11-0. The United States, Colombia, Nicaragua and Sierra Leone abstained.

It was the council's eighth warning to Israel since March 1968. The resolution said Israel had carried out "a premeditated military action in violation of its obligations" under the U.N. Charter and that the council would "consider taking adequate and effective steps or measures in accordance with the relevant articles of the Charter to implement its resolutions." Such steps could include economic sanctions or political or military action.

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah called the resolution one-sided and declared that Israel reserves its right to hit back at all Arab guerrilla strikes.

"We shall always defend ourselves against attack and protect our people from aggression until our neighbors realize that peace is better than war," Tekoah said.

U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost also labeled the resolution one-sided and complained that it did not "take sufficient account of the repeated violations of the cease-fire originating from within Lebanon."

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik called the United States and its followers "bad fairies" who had done "everything in their power" to keep the resolution from being passed. He also repeated the Soviet demand that Israel withdraw from all occupied Arab territory.

Yost replied that Malik had

In Tel Aviv, meanwhile, the Israeli military command denied an Egyptian charge that Israeli jets bombed civilian targets along the Suez Canal Tuesday and killed or wounded several civilians. Tel Aviv said the planes hit only military targets.

Spokesmen reported that Israeli warplanes staged a 90-minute raid today on Egyptian military targets across the canal, and all planes returned following the attacks along the central part of the waterway.

Hickel is Asked To Run For Governor of Alaska

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, the first Cabinet officer to voice public doubt over the Nixon administration's policy toward young dissenters, is reported being urged to run again for the Alaska governorship.

The secretary, in denying the reports, said in a statement Tuesday, "I have no plans to leave the Nixon Cabinet. I intend to serve the President for as long as my services can be productive and of value on behalf of all Americans."

Washington sources had said some 49th state Republicans have attempted to pressure the former Alaska governor into resigning his federal post to take on a strong Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

The appeals to Hickel, sources said, were based on the argument that former Democratic Gov. William Egan could win the post this November because of a bitter GOP primary fight between incumbent Gov. Keith Miller and Congressman Howard W. Pollock.

Hickel defeated Egan in the 1966 election and backers believe he could unite Alaska Republicans and carry them to victory.

Hickel's concern with Nixon administration policy surfaced after U.S. troops entered Cambodia and the shooting deaths of four students at Kent State University.

In a letter, Hickel urged President Nixon to listen more attentively to youths who feel they are excluded from American political processes.

Hickel met face-to-face with the President for the first time since mailing the letter during a Cabinet meeting Tuesday. Neither White House nor Interior Department spokesmen would acknowledge whether the letter was specifically discussed.

Hickel, however, issued a statement after the meeting, saying, "We examined the full spectrum of the nation's concerns, including our interest in the problems of youth."

The deadline for filing for the governorship is May 31.

Oil Pollution Measures Are Urged By President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon proposed to Congress today legislation to strengthen the authority of the Coast Guard in protecting against oil spills.

He also requested ratification of three international agreements to combat oil pollution in international waters and said he would seek a $35 million appropriation to establish an already authorized revolving fund to clean up oil spills.

The proposals were outlined in a 10-point message to Congress in which the President noted that increased shipping has greatly increased the danger of oil spills and their threat to the marine environment.

Nixon proposed a Ports and Waterways Safety Act of 1970, allowing the Coast Guard to "control vessel traffic in the inland waters and the territorial seas of the United States."

It would also empower the Coast Guard to regulate handling and storage of dangerous cargoes on the waterfront, to set safety requirements for waterfront equipment and facilities, and to establish safety zones or other "controlled access areas" in and near U.S. ports.

Nixon also urged the ratification of two new international conventions developed in Brussels last year under the auspices of the Intergovernmental Maritime Consultative Organization, an agency of the United Nations.

One convention would empower nations to take preventive ac-

Gas Tax Is Asked By Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, conceding his predicted budget surpluses for this fiscal year and next have turned into red-ink deficits, has called for a tax on leaded gasoline to raise $1.6 billion a year more in government funds and fight pollution.

Other revenue increases to balance the budget will not be sought, said Budget Director Robert P. Mayo, because higher taxes "would be inappropriate when we have an increase in unemployment."

Another administration spokesman told Southern businessmen to forget about wage and price controls as a means of halting continuing inflation.

The announcements were made Tuesday as the administration sought to reassure investors and businessmen they can count on "a new steadiness of progress."

Nixon, who said in February a balanced budget was crucial to control inflation, said declining revenues and rising federal costs would result in a $1.8 billion deficit in the 1970 fiscal year ending June 30 and a $1.3 billion deficit for fiscal 1971.

Nixon had predicted a $1.5 billion surplus for the current fiscal year and a $1.3 billion surplus for the following fiscal year.

Sagging corporate profits were cited as the reason for the 1970 deficit.

Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, in a speech written for him at the White House, told the Delta Council in Cleveland, Miss., they can count on "a new steadiness of progress."

The stock market's sinking spells, he added, are "based on fears rather than facts." When asked about wage and price controls to stabilize the economy, Mitchell replied, "Forget about them."

Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, ranking Republican on the Senate-House Economic Committee, urged Nixon in a Senate speech Tuesday to pay more serious attention "to the urgent need for an incomes policy which would put more restraint" on wages, prices and interest rates.

Nixon said in a statement the administration remains "determined to curb inflation." But he added:

"Frankly, my concern about unemployment and my desire to bring about price stability without economic dislocation is why the campaign to control inflation cannot be accomplished quickly."

Tax revenues this fiscal year, Nixon said, are running about $3 billion below expectations.

Local Plumbers Tied to Talks In Kansas City

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KANSAS CITY — Jack V. Mainey Jr., business manager of Plumbers Union Local No. 8 here, today said only "We are still negotiating" when asked about rumors of a possible plumber's strike in Sedalia.

About 26 plumbers in Sedalia come under the jurisdiction of Local No. 8, and about six plumbing contractors are involved in the negotiations, Mainey said.

He would not state what, if any, progress had been made, nor if any of the Sedalia contractors were holding out on terms desired by the union.

The union's contracts expire at midnight Thursday, he said. The Democrat was unable to confirm rumors that the union sought $7.50 an hour for its members.

Growing Campus Unrest Hurts 18-Year-Old Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recent outbreaks of campus violence may have endangered one of the students' prized goals—lowering the voting age to 18.

With a House vote on the 18-year-old vote due next month, sponsors are worried a backlash effect may be building as anti-war sentiment continues to disrupt the colleges.

There is also concern the strongly anti-Nixon stance of the protesting students will make it harder to pick up the 40 or so Republican votes needed to pass the measure.

"I'd have to say its going to be tougher now," said Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., who is leading the effort to build House Republican support for the bill.

Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-Ill., a Democrat working actively for the measure, shares Railsback's concern. "Before all this," Mikva said, "studies showed that the students weren't in anybody's bag. In states where there is a lower voting age, they haven't changed the voting patterns much. But now Mr. Nixon has good reason to believe they are against him."

Resident Nixon already has come out against the Senate-passed bill, which calls for lowering the voting age by federal statute. Nixon has said it should be done by constitutional amendment.

House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford is supporting the President's position, which makes Railsback's job even tougher.

Mikva said the 40 necessary Republican votes were in hand a few days ago, but there is some doubt about the GOP support now.

The backlash effect of student demonstrations and riots can be seen in letters coming into the House Judiciary Committee.

A man in Hackensack, N.J., said no country where students have political power is in very good shape, and a man in St. Louis wrote, "The past week has shown to the nation the irresponsibility and the lack of making qualified judgments by the students of this country."

On the other side, the mass of students crowding the Capitol corridors the past several days, lobbying for various antiwar amendments, have made a good impression on Congress.

Many have had their hair cut. They are neatly dressed, courteous and orderly, and show a keen awareness of what is going on.

"They have behaved in an exemplary fashion," said Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., who, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, will handle the age-vote bill on the floor.

"They have shown their interest in politics and their belief in the democratic process by coming here," Celler said.

Ann Landers

Looks Don't Count On Ladder of Life

Dear Ann Landers: As I rode the bus yesterday I noticed two teenagers making fun of a woman who had just boarded. She was unusually homely and shabbily dressed. The children were laughing at her and she knew it. My heart ached. It brought back some painful memories of my own miserable childhood.

I was a very ugly child. I knew it even before I went to school. Friends and relatives tried to cheer up my mother by saying such things as, "Don't worry. She'll probably grow up to be a nice looking girl."

In high school I kept to myself because I thought I was too ugly to deserve anyone's friendship. Whenever people tried to be nice I was sure it was because they pitied me.

One day I found a note in my locker that read, "You are the ugliest person on earth. If I had a face like yours I'd kill myself." I was so shattered I couldn't hold my head up in class. The teacher noticed and took me aside and asked if I was ill. I told her, "No — just tired." I was still clutching the note in my hand. She sensed something was wrong and reached for the note and read it.

That day my life changed. That wonderful woman made me see I was letting life beat me down and it was my own fault — not the fault of the cruel and thoughtless few. She made me see that I was my own worst enemy and it was up to me to be a participant in life instead of a bystander — that a person's feelings about himself are more important than what others think of him.

The purpose of this letter is to give hope and confidence to those who aren't as lucky as I. I shudder to think what my life would have been like if that saint of a teacher hadn't helped me. I know now this world is filled with homely people who have made it, and beautiful ones who haven't made it, and never will. If you don't believe me, look around. — Exhibit A.

Dear A.: I know you are right without "looking around." Thanks for a good letter. There's a meaningful message here.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend who lives about 100 miles from here. He is an attractive guy — could charm the birds out of the trees. I see him often at meetings, seminars and political affairs. His opening lines are always the same — "Thanks for the letter and the clippings. I meant to drop you a line. I've written you a dozen letters — in my head."

How about a snappy comeback for this character? — Sick of the Broken Record.

Dear Rec: Tell him the next time he writes you a letter in his head to mail his head.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend who has turned into an insufferable bore ever since she hit on a "cure" for a backache.

According to this nut her back ached all the time — sometimes so bad she couldn't do her housework. She read in an old almanac about "the stone and water cure" — getting into a tub of hot water and letting the water run continuously — on a pile of plain, ordinary stones.

Now that's all she ever talks about. Of course, she gets lots of attention because almost everybody's back aches. Tell her to shut up and stop making a fool of herself. — Bugged Marie.

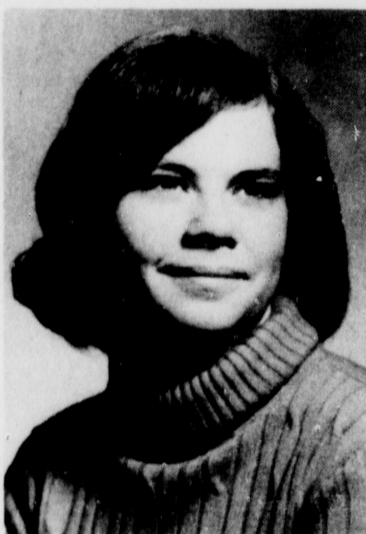

Dear Marie: Relaxing in a hot tub can't hurt and it might help. Don't knock it if you haven't tried it.

Science Cruise Won by Fowler

By MARY PROCTOR
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Nick Fowler, Smith-Cotton High School senior, arrived home Saturday with one of the choicest prizes from the 21st annual International Science Fair, held in Baltimore last week — a two-week cruise aboard a navy oceanographic research ship this summer.

More than 400 high school students from all over the United States and 12 foreign countries attended the fair, sponsored by numerous scientific organizations. Nick's award was received from the Society of Exploration Geophysicists. He and a fellow winner from New Mexico will work alongside navy scientists and physicists on the trip.

Several types of awards were given. Nick said, ranging from trips to "Expo '70" in Tokyo this summer, to monetary prizes. His cruise was the longest offered. About 50 other students were attending the science fair for the second time. Nick, as over-all winner at the regional contest at Central Missouri State College last year, was among the fifty. His project involved aerodynamics.

This year's project, which its creator refers to as "Sound," takes about a day and a half to assemble. It is entitled "Effects of media density on sonic velocity," and is designed to determine sonic depths by measuring types of gasses at different levels. The project will not be used during his summer cruise, but he will be able to study procedures aboard the research ship with the navy's top level scientists.

Along with a certificate from

his sponsors, Nick received a medal, his second, for being chosen to participate in the fair. Next fall he will enter William Jewell College at Liberty to study engineering and physics. Accompanying Nick, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Pryce Fowler, State Fair and 14th, was Fred Lovercamp, science instructor at Smith-Cotton. Since the fair coincided with the Preakness horse race, Fowler said he and several entrants and instructors enjoyed some of the festivities prior to the race, as well as

"just sitting and waiting for judging" after assembling their projects.

Nick credited much of the success of his project to his science instructors, James Doering and Gerhardt Jaeger, as well as Lovercamp, and added that R. D. Brown, Frank Chaney, Mo-Ox of Sedalia, had been helpful in supplying him with material and helping him to assemble his prize-winning exhibit.

Five other Missouri high school students won certificates or honorary mention for display at the fair.

Nashville is Mecca For Country Music Hopefuls

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — If you have to, you can walk across the Shelby Street Bridge spanning the Cumberland River from Mom Upchurch's rooming house to the Grand Ole Opry House three miles away.

And, if you're just breaking into the country music business, you may have to. When you hit Music City, U.S.A., with a guitar, $10 in your jeans and hope, you don't hire many taxis.

You also find out that it can be a long three miles to the Opry House—and you may never get there at all.

Edgel Groves, 28, made his first money picking and singing 12 years ago in an Akron, Ohio, night club. Since then, he's been to every state in the nation, made a few records for labels few people would recognize, sold products for an Akron rubber company—and kept on picking, singing and writing songs.

Now, feeling himself on the verge of the bigtime, he's taken an apartment near 16th Avenue South—where the action is and where most of the major recording companies and talent agencies have their headquarters.

Girls also try—and some of them, like Bobby Gentry and Loretta Lynn, find life quite pleasant. Right now, 17-year-old Dianne Davidson, the blonde, blue-eyed daughter of a Camden, Tenn., druggist, recently moved here with her family in hopes that being at the heart of things will further her career. She's recently signed a contract to get some of her songs published—and a talent agency signed her to a five-year contract in an effort to place her as a performer.

But most who come here are boys, in their late teens, and single. They come each year by the thousands, by bus, by car and by thumb. And for 25 years, Mom Upchurch's has been a haven for the young musician, dreaming of the bigtime—and not realizing that in this business, you've never really got it made.

"I guess I've had about 2,000 boys here," smiled Mrs. Upchurch, gray, bespectacled—and motherly. "I tell them it's their home. They have the run of the house. Sometimes, we have jam sessions, when they can all get together. But they're on the road so much."

"I started taking in young musicians about 25 years ago, right after my husband died," she recalled. "I had all of Pee Wee King's boys, except Pee Wee—he was married and lived right across the street—and, of course, Eddy Arnold. He was married and had a baby."

Any of her roomers go on to stardom? "I've had a few. Carl Smith, Faron Young and Ferlin Husky. They were some of my boys."

Wherever they come from, however they arrive, they all come with the same dream—to get to the top.

But even if they make it big, the pattern of their life doesn't change: only the style. From Mom Upchurch's, they can move into a $100,000 lakeside home, but they can't stay there much: their records will bring $25,000 instead of $500 to $1,000, one-nighters will pay $3,000 instead of $100 or $200.

When a musician gets caught up in the swirl, however, he finds himself in a vicious cycle. Without hit recordings he can't book personal appearances; without personal appearances, he can't sell records.

For some of those on top, there's too much pressure. The legendary Hank Williams had an unbelievably brief three-year stint as a Grand Ole Opry star before he collapsed and died in the rear seat of his car, en route to a one-night personal appearance in Alabama in 1952.

The divorce rate is high. It's not much of a life for a wife or a husband whose mate is never home.

But still they come. Like Edgel Groves or Dianne Davidson. And all of them have to write their own songs.

"That's the problem of the young singer," explains Audie Ashworth, an executive with the Hubert Long talent agency, one of the giants in the country and western field. "The established writers want to place their songs with the established stars. That means if the young singer can't write his own material, he can't get anywhere—and if he can't write good material, he still can't get anywhere."

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — After revision of "a somewhat unclear directive," a teacher in Transvaal province now may administer corporal punishment to a student in the presence of the principal but not in front of the class, education officials said.

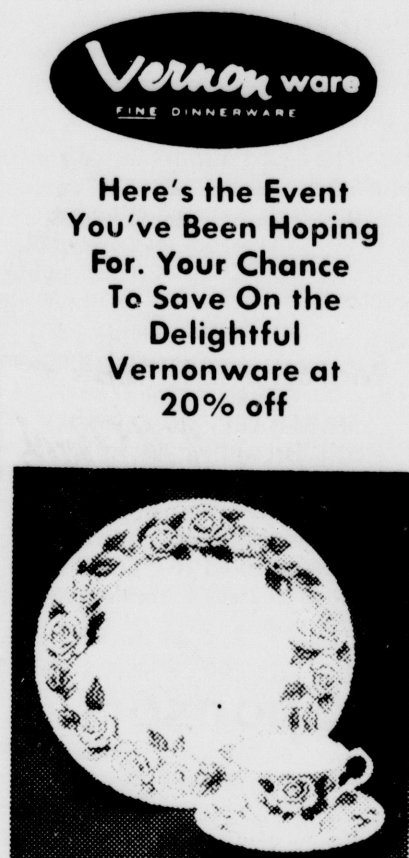

Brazil's Population Expected to Double

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Economist Rubens Vaz da Costa predicts Brazil will double its population by the end of the century—to 200 million. He said population growth rate is particularly high in the northeast.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

Sedalia, Missouri, Wednesday, May 20, 1970—Section B

Slater Named After Union Army Colonel

By HAZEL LANG
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Josiah Baker, Jr., came to Saline County in 1865 from Chillicothe, Ohio, with his parents. His father purchased a section of land that year from William T. Gilliam, who had obtained it from the federal government in 1851. It was on Aug. 8, 1878, that Baker had the original town of Slater platted.

Other first settlers in the town were Mahlon Hatfield, Hiram Liggett, T. B. Morris, J. Nauerth, the Zahl Brothers, James Swink and W. P. Casbolt.

The first business was the lumber yard of Ancell and Baker, established in September of 1878. When the town was first laid out, lumber had to be hauled 15 miles from Arrow Rock and eight miles from Cambridge.

Although two previous railroads had been surveyed in the county, The Chicago and Alton was first to begin work in 1872. This railroad reached Slater in 1878, with Baker giving 80 acres of his 160 acres of land to the railroad for a division point when it came to the township. A roundhouse and repair and maintenance shops were located there. There were 25 buildings there by the time the tracks were built, and 20 more were being built. It was that same year that the town was organized as a village and named for Colonel Slater of the Union Army who was one of the largest stockholders and a prominent director of the railroad.

The town, located on the north side of the tracks gave the railroad every other block of land along Front street adjoining the railroad.

The first train arrived in 1879. This was a big occasion, with a barbecue, speeches and fireworks, drawing people for miles.

The freight office was built in 1878 and used as a depot until a small wooden depot was built in 1879. This depot burned in 1915 and a new, large, two-story brick building was built. Today there are no trains through Slater, except freight trains, and the depot is no longer used.

Main Street

The main street of Slater in the days town before refrigerators were when ice was delivered by horse-drawn wagons to the people of the Church, and would come for services at Good Hope every two weeks.

"There was a Baptist revival," Estel Rhoads said, "and it snowed so hard that people couldn't get through to the church on horseback — so, what did they do? They walked. The revival lasted eight weeks."

Mrs. Clara Hasemeier remembers the nickelodeon, the show that only cost a nickel. It was upstairs, and there were wild west pictures. Mrs. Hasemeier is the mother of Mrs. Paul Hagemeier, Sedalia.

Everybody came to town on Saturday, she said, and had a good time visiting.

She went to school in a one-seated cart when she was a little girl, she recalled.

She was the daughter of J. H. Bollman who went in business with Matthias Baier, in the ice and coal business. The supply of ice came from a large pond on the Bollman farm north of Slater. It was cut from the pond with a horse-drawn plow, pushed to the pond bank by long poles where it was cut into blocks of uniform size, stored in a nearby ice house and covered with sawdust. There was also a large ice storehouse on Front street.

When summer came they loaded the ice on a horse-drawn wagon and made daily rounds of the town. If a housewife needed ice she put a large card in her window which indicated the amount she wanted. The ice was sold in blocks of 25, 50, 75 and 100 pounds.

Mr. Baier's daughter is Mrs. H. R. Strauss, Slater.

Pete Herder, a photographer in Slater, didn't start out to be one. He started out delivering ice and some orders were up to 150 pounds and at the butcher shop they had to leave 300 pounds.

Then he carried mail. There was village delivery and city delivery, with $40 difference in pay a month. The village delivery paid $60 and the city delivery $40 more. He figured he walked about 140,000 miles making deliveries, but during the depression the post office paid employees in cash and that meant a lot at that time to his family.

Herder, who took up photography as a hobby, and then as a business after he retired from the post office, doesn't let it interfere with his fishing.

Everybody likes to brag a little about something in their town but Pete, who has never married, brags on the children of Slater. Particularly the teenagers. He thinks the teenagers of Slater are mighty fine young people. He doesn't see anything wrong with them. They are smarter than kids used to be, they have more advantages and more temptations.

In addition to the once $60,000 payroll of the railroad, Slater once had several industries that are no longer operating as they once did. But the town does have industries, a beautiful park, a country club, the modern Big Bend Retreat which is a nursing home, churches of several faiths, a nice elementary school and a high school all in the same area.

It is a pretty town with good residential sections, business sections and lots of trees.

Early Business

J. H. Bollman, in the door, and his son by the coal truck of the Baier and Bollman Coal Company, one of the early businesses in Slater.

In the town lives George Roller, a retired railroad engineer, who for 55 years worked on that road. He started to work as a fireman in 1907 and retired in 1962. When he was firing, he hand fired one of the old steam engines.

Roller, who has a lot of yard to mow, stopped mowing to reminisce on railroading. "You got mighty black from the coal and the cinders on those old steam engines," he said, "but there wasn't the strain that there is on the diesel."

"That coal smoke didn't cause air pollution," he went on to say, "it is the exhaust from the cars that is causing pollution."

He told how they shipped meat in refrigerated cars using ice shipped from Lake Michigan in stock cars and box cars.

One of the men who left the greatest imprint on people of Saline County was the Rev. W. M. Bell. He lived at Miami, but served as pastor of Good Hope Baptist Church for 40 years. He also preached at Union Baptist

Senate Views on Cambodia Vary

WASHINGTON (AP) — One-time hawk Sen. Ernest F. Hollings is telling his South Carolina constituents President Nixon erred in sending U.S. troops into Cambodia and may have alienated an entire generation.

At the same time, his Republican colleague, Sen. Strom Thurman, has praised the Nixon decision as an act of courage.

Their conflicting advice to the same, generally conservative constituency is an example of the Senate's great debate over Cambodia.

More than two weeks after U.S. forces entered Cambodia, the initial anger among many senators has increased, along with sarcasm and disbelief.

This is especially true among those such as Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and senior Republican George D. Aiken who had earlier shown considerable sympathy with President Nixon's efforts to withdraw U.S. troops from Vietnam and wind down the war.

Both have been openly skeptical of Nixon's contention he can bring the entire Cambodian operation off by June 30—a skepticism strengthened by reports that U.S. naval and air forces plus South Vietnamese ground units may continue in Cambodia past that date.

"We were told soon after the operation started that the Parrots Beak had been cleared out of the enemy," Aiken observed one day last week. But, he noted, radio reports that morning told of sharp fighting in the Parrots Beak with 300 North Vietnamese killed.

A little later, Mansfield told reporters he didn't see why the South Vietnamese couldn't take over the whole operation in Cambodia even before June 30. "Vietnamization is going very well," he said caustically. "It's a success."

Mansfield and other senators seeking to restrict presidential authority over fighting in Southeast Asia insist they are doing so as "strict constructionists" of the Constitution, referring to the article reserving the power to declare war to Congress.

That prompted Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., one of the strictest of the strict constructionists involving subjects such as school desegregation, to maintain "the time has long passed for making a strict construction here."

And Thurmond, long an advocate of hitting Communist sanctuaries, said "It is now time for the American people to close ranks behind our President."

But Hollings, noting he had always felt Presidents Johnson and Nixon had failed to go far enough to win the war, said the President's "sudden switch into Cambodia without consulting Congress amounts to a surprise attack on the basic tenets of representative government."

"We must act immediately to restore the people's confidence," Hollings said. "This is what concerns the majority of students."

"They have been fighting the militants and campus radicals. They have been opposing the burnings and campus takeovers. Their argument has been for the system and working within the system."

"President Nixon seriously damaged this argument with Cambodia," Hollings concluded, "and now we stand to alienate a whole generation of future leadership in this country."

Maine passed the first prohibition law of any state of the Union on June 2, 1851.

Safeguard Work Lagging

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the Safeguard antimissile debate rages over such chilling issues as missile threats and nuclear survival, the actual building of the Safeguard sites has hardly begun.

In the wheat fields around Grand Forks, N.D., about the only evidence of the missile-radar complex that is supposed to be ready to shoot down incoming Red Chinese and Soviet missiles by 1974 is a 12-mile dirt road, a 50-foot hole in the ground and a rail siding.

The Safeguard antimissile installations around Malmstrom Air Force Base and Great Falls, Mont., don't even have the rail siding and the hole in the ground.

But the first major construction contracts have been let and the House is expected to authorize $325.8 million Wednesday to begin building the radars, missile silos and other facilities.

The money is for antimissile sites at Grand Forks, Malmstrom and Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo.; site surveys and design work for five possible future sites and test facilities on Kwajalein Atoll in the Pacific.

The difference between Safeguard's life-or-death implications and construction progress stood out in sharp contrast when Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird presented plans to Congress early this year.

Laird described a Soviet missile buildup now and potential

Red Chinese missile threat in the 1980s which he said requires a small Safeguard expansion now—the Whiteman site—and may require a major expansion if the threats increase.

Critics countered that Safeguard is not only a threat to the current U.S.-Soviet arms limitations talks but is itself an escalation of the arms race inviting a faster Soviet buildup.

Then the testimony got around to actual construction of the two Safeguard sites, at Grand Forks and Malmstrom, that Congress has authorized so far.

"We have not been able to go forward with construction because of the weather and so forth," Laird said.

A&P Offers You a Chance To Cut Food Costs That Few Other Supermarkets Can Offer!

Supermarkets all carry the famous National Brands. A&P does . . . proudly. These days many supermarkets have their own company brands. To some, selling price is first in importance, quality second. To A&P, it's the opposite. Quality comes first . . . high quality that we can control because we produce in our own plants so many of our own brands.

So A&P offers you the choice . . . famous National Brands at prices we believe will save you money, or quality-famous A&P Brands at prices we know will save you money, without having to sacrifice quality. Few other supermarkets can offer you this quality choice . . . this chance to cut food costs.

Clinic for Headaches

LONDON (AP) — Early this century George Bernard Shaw, more than normally irascible after a bout with migraine headache, met Fridtjof Nansen, the Norwegian explorer.

"Did you ever discover a headache cure?" demanded Shaw.

Nansen admitted that headache cures weren't lying around loose at the North Pole. "Well," said Shaw, "that is the most astonishing thing you have spent your life trying to discover the North Pole, which no one cares tuppence about, and you have never attempted to discover a cure for headache, which every living person is crying aloud for."

The Irish playwright was too early for London's brand-new city Migraine Clinic. It is a place where sufferers may get cost-free treatment for headaches variously described as migraine, megrim, brow ache and sick headache. The clinic is operated by the Migraine Trust, a five-year-old organization operating with much optimism and little money.

Most of the active members of the trust are physicians, sufferers or relatives of sufferers.

It has been estimated that 2½ million Britons and 10 million Americans suffer migraine attacks. The Greeks used to call the malady "half a head" because it made one feel as if the top of the head had worked loose.

Since migraine can be traced to Babylonian times, its victims have been legion—Rudyard Kipling, Alexander Pope, Mary Tudor, the first Duke of Marlborough, Friedrich Nietzsche.

Although physicians don't know the causes, they have made some progress in controlling the number and severity of migraine attacks. In 1937 they discovered ergotamine tartrate and about five years ago deseril or methy sergide, which produced some unpleasant side effects.

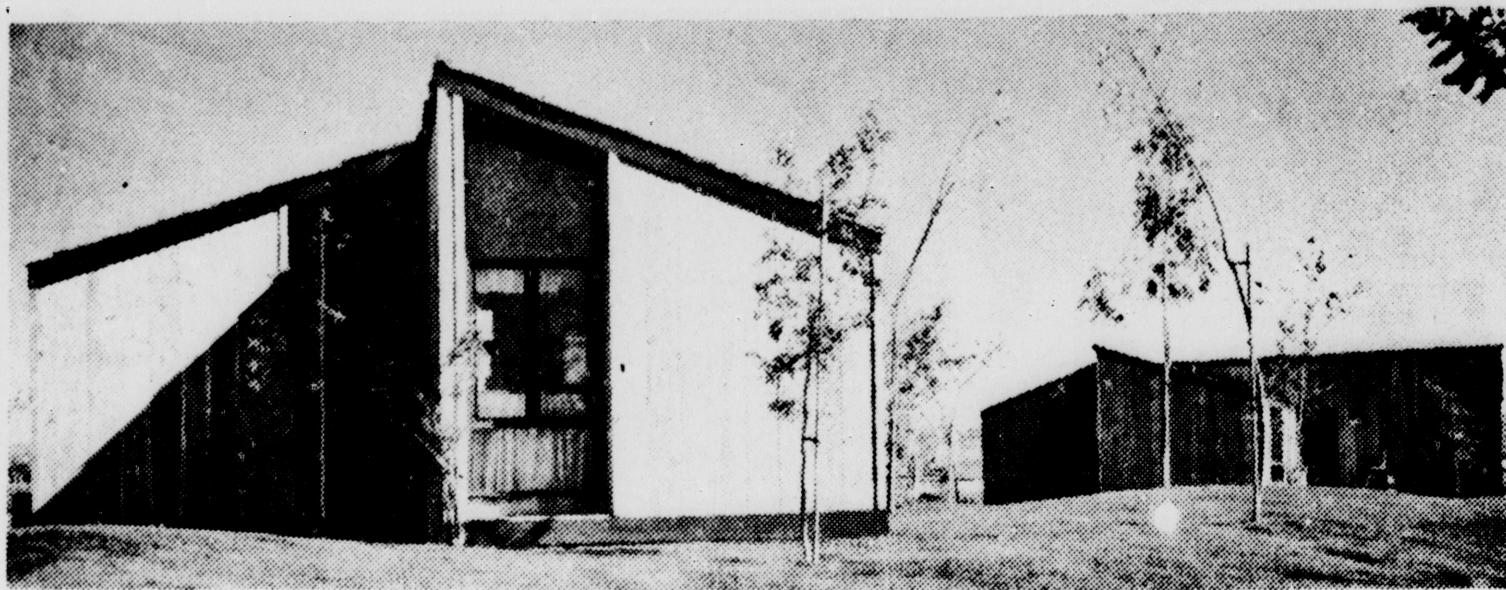

A recent development is ST155 or clonidine, a chemical which stabilizes the contraction and expansion of blood vessels.

The Migraine Trust is paying for a dozen experiments in Britain aside from the clinic. At Keele University doctors have developed a way to measure electrically a migraine attack. At Great Ormond Street Hospital for Sick Children another team is studying children with recurrent headaches.

Not every headache is migraine and weeding out the classic "half a head" type is the first task at the new clinic.

"We had a woman yesterday," said a physician. "The truth was she was so fat she suffered from hypertension headaches. The first thing we have to do with clinic visitors is to find out if they have migraine or just the garden variety of headache. That's our headache."

Dress Up Trailer Park

This is a trailer park? Yes. To many minds, a trailer park means shiny metal boxes parked in long, undistinguished rows. This one, however, midway between Los Angeles and San Diego, Calif., is different. Wood exteriors give the mobile units an un-trailer look.

Breakthrough In Air Pollution Battle

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Political and industrial leaders from many sections of the nation have been invited to a public unveiling this week of a high-heat incinerator designed to control pollution from airborne contaminants.

The special incinerator, located at Turner, Kan., a Kansas City area suburb, is part of a large automated railroad car dismantling plant of the Erman Corporation of Chicago. Walter Erman, 76, president of the firm, designed the incinerator.

He says his process consistently controls pollution from airborne contaminants with better than 25 per cent more efficiency than that set down by government standards.

Old and sick railroad cars — boxcars, stock cars, Pullmans — travel their last mile at the plant, ending up as scrap and salvageable metal.

The incinerator is the key to the salvage process. Four railroad cars at a time move through a 1,300-degree inferno and a metal skeleton emerges about every 15 minutes.

Erman says the burning puts no odor, smoke or pollutants into the air. He says state and federal authorities, including the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) are looking into the process at his invitation.

With a backlog of about 2,600 railroad cars to disintegrate, Erman's destruction target is 100 cars a day.

The unit produces near perfect incineration through a combination of oxygen-enriched air and turbulence. When a railroad car, on its own wheels, enters the 320-foot long building, it is ignited with a blast of flaming oil. The burning takes place rapidly in the oxygen-enriched and turbulent air. Air curtains at each end of the building keep the smoke inside the structure.

The smoke is drawn into three huge manifolds where the air is cooled by an exterior sprinkling system. In this cooler air, particles are suspended and then drawn into afterburners, where another blast of 2,200 degrees of fire further disintegrates the particles. This heated air is cooled again, then goes through scrubbers, where sprays of water wash virtually all the remaining residue from the air.

When the residue smoke passes out of the stacks, it is filtered to show the amount of pollution remaining. Government tolerance is up to 2.0 on what is known as the Ringleman chart. Erman says his readings are usually less than 1.5.

Formal tours of the plant started today and continue through Friday. Besides officials of railroads, the scrap and steel industries, invitations have been extended to Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans, Secretary of Transportation John Volpe, several governors and U.S. senators.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans trying to wrest control of the Senate after 16 years as the minority are taking careful aim at a trio of liberal Democrats: Frank E. Moss of Utah, Gale McGee of Wyoming and Quentin L. Burdick of North Dakota.

If they can win in these races the GOP will be a long way toward gaining the seven seats it needs to control the Senate.

On paper all three Democrats appear to be vulnerable. Their states are generally conservative, with a strong Republican tradition that only one Democratic presidential candidate, Lyndon B. Johnson, has broken in the past 20 years.

Two of them, Moss and McGee, were elected to their first terms in 1958, a recession year that found a Republican in the White house, and all three were re-elected in 1964, the year of Johnson's landslide victory over Republican Barry Goldwater.

This time, Moss, McGee and Burdick are on their own as they start campaigns for a third term. Nonetheless, interviews with key political figures of both parties disclosed that each of the three, for varying reasons, is in a strong position.

Each emphasizes his seniority, each cites a record of accomplishment attuned to state interests and each hopes to capitalize on the Nixon administration's growing problems, especially in the economy.

While most of the interviews were before the Cambodian crisis erupted, the politicians were well aware of its potential impact. "If he (Nixon) gets bogged down in the swamps of Cambodia, we're all in deep trouble," said Rep. Laurence J. Burton of Utah, the likely Republican candidate against Moss.

In Utah, Democratic leaders are counting heavily on a Republican scandal in Moss' Salt Lake City stronghold plus a Democratic registration majority in Burton's home city of Ogden to counter the congressman's expected majorities elsewhere in the state.

In Wyoming, the hawkish McGee is under pressure from a small but vocal group of anti-war Democrats. But his positions against gun control and for the oil depletion allowance appear to have balanced a liberal domestic record in his contest with Rep. John Wold, the Republican he defeated six years ago.

Sen. Burdick banks heavily on his name—his father was a Republican congressman for 26 years—and the unpopularity of the Nixon administration's farm program in a rerun of his 1964 race against Rep. Thomas Kleppe.

In addition these are states where the personal touch is still essential, where imagery and television appeal is less important than in the larger states.

Ginger Snaps

By Ginger Moore

At 25, I hardly consider myself a part of the "establishment" or on the "older" side of the generation gap, but I must admit that at times I find it difficult to judge the long-haired, bearded youths on the basis of themselves.

In the past couple of weeks, however, I have met some of these kids under different circumstances and I'm beginning to realize that they aren't much different from when I was their age, just different looking.

On a recent outing to the park a neighbor and I took our four boys, all under age three, and two girls eight and eleven, for a picnic. Handling this many children while trying to prepare a lunch is difficult under any circumstances, but in a park with so many things for the children to explore it was impossible to keep track of them.

There were a number of teens in the park and from their looks you could imagine all sorts of dope fiends and political radicals lurking under that mop of hair, but this wasn't the case at all. The boys gathered the younger ones up and took them for rides on the merry-go-round, pushed them on swings and carried the one-year-old around.

The younger children had no trouble at all making friends with the teens and thoroughly enjoyed being tossed around and entertained with "Frisbees" and balls.

Later that same week while grocery shopping I was trying to unload a heaping basketload of groceries, keep my three-year-old from pilfering the candy bars and keep my one-year-old from tearing up the magazines placed handily by the cash register and three teenage boys who were standing by the register came to my rescue.

While I held the baby, my oldest was entertained by one of the boys and the others unloaded my basket. None of the boys worked in the store and they all seemed to enjoy helping me out of what was obviously a trying situation.

I heard a recent panel presentation by two members of the so-called "youth" movement who said that the best answer for today's problems was for everyone to "act as Christians."

Perhaps we are getting through to the younger generation and although they are not reacting as we would expect, they are still looking for the same basic goals the rest of us are: a goal of peace, happiness and well-being for everyone.

For Women

Garden Club Council Holds Flower Show

A flower show with the theme of "Floral Calendar" was presented by the Council of Sedalia Garden Clubs Friday, at Convention Hall, Liberty Park, despite the wind, hail and rain that has been beating on gardens for the past several days. Mrs. Roy Brown was flower show chairman with Mrs. R. R. Steinkuhler as co-chairman.

Mrs. Wilford Acker was awarded the tri-color award for her "Sunrise Riot of Color" which was an arrangement of bright red geraniums and yellow iris, with a wooden background of red, green and yellow.

She also won the award of distinction with "Forecast for Fall" with an orange plastic vase with open sections, and flowers made of orange peel, cut and dried, and combined with large dried brown leaves.

In sweepstakes Mrs. Leonard Hall received the award in horticulture and Mrs. Acker for artistic design.

The special Council Award was given to Club No. 2.

The flower show committee was composed of Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Steinkuhler, Mrs. Kenzie Miller, Mrs. Pinkney Miller, Mrs. Wilford Acker, Mrs. Walter Banning, Mrs. P. L. Strode and Mrs. Cecil W. Bohon.

Helpful Hints

Constant Temperature

In old-fashioned showers, hot and cold water was mixed manually. Any sudden surge in water supply pressure could change the mixture, giving the user a sudden dousing of icy cold or near-scalding water. Today's controls are engineered to adjust to pressure change to that once it's set, the temperature remains constant.

Quick-Dry Garments

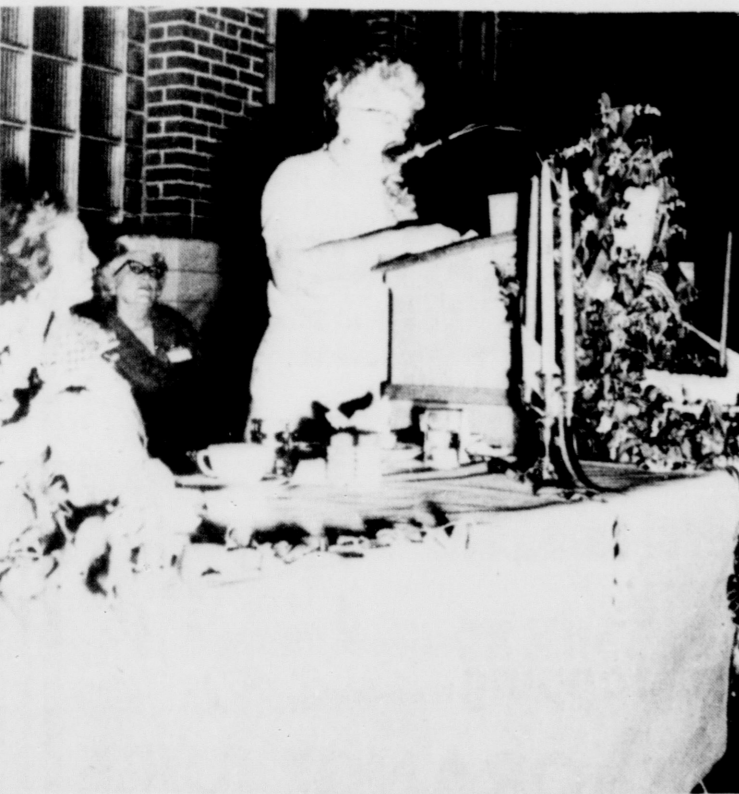

One of the virtues of durable press fabrics is their ability to dry quickly so you should hang garments on hangers as soon as they feel dry to touch.

Wash Floor Daily

Because modern floor waxes withstand washing without losing their shine, it is a good idea to dip a sponge mop into a pail of soap and wipe the kitchen floor daily. This way insures that sand and mud will not be tracked into the rest of the house.

Go Lightly With Soap

If your skin has a tendency toward dryness, the best thing to do is to use a minimum of soap. Use cleansing creams instead, limiting soap to once or twice a week. Be sure to apply a moisturizing cream right after you've used soap on your face.

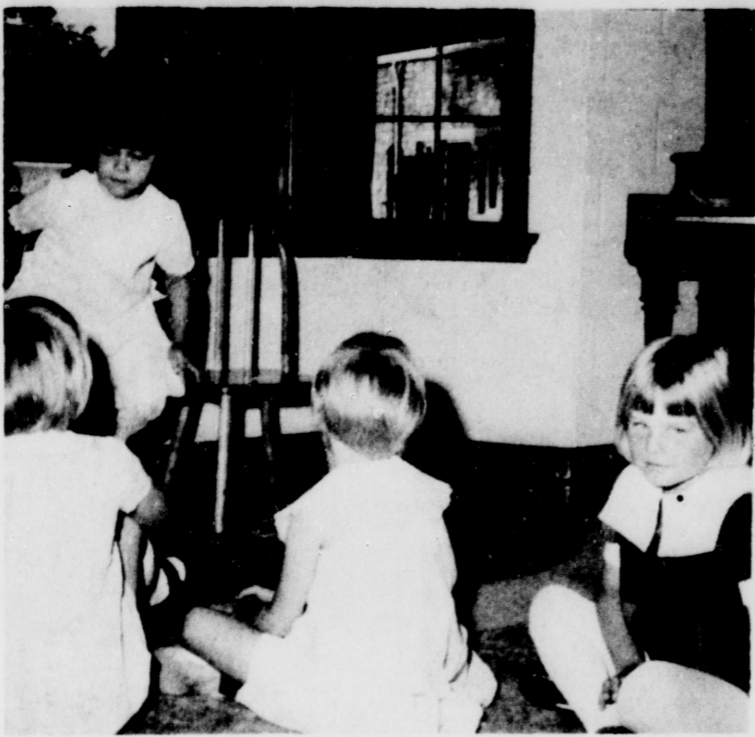

Addresses Women

Pre-schoolers Present

An open house for parents of students of the Broadway Presbyterian Pre-school included a program presented

By GINGER MOORE
Women's Editor

The need for four-year-olds to have the opportunity of playing with creative toys in a supervised situation and to have physical activities with children their own age, led to the formation of the Broadway Cooperative Pre-school.

The school, which is run by a board of five persons, is operated three days a week, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 9 to 11:30 a.m. The board is made up of two persons chosen by the Presbyterian Church session (the ruling body of the church) and the other three are selected from the parent membership. All parents whose children are enrolled are part of the parent membership.

Present board members are: Mrs. Lowell Hesterlee, president; Mrs. Harry Boul, vice president in charge of programs; Mrs. Richard Parkhurst, treasurer; Mrs. Jeremy Harris, secretary; and Mrs. James Burkeholder, equipment and supply chairman.

Teacher for the school is Mrs. Duane Slagel who directs the children's activities. The children are encouraged to play, sing, paint, and use their imagination to lead to new experiences. Animals and plants are brought into the classroom and the children have an outdoor playground which is used daily.

Discipline and training in social habits is a large part of the school's program. Children are encouraged to use each other's names and taught to serve refreshments.

Follow Directions

Mrs. Duane Slagel, teacher of the class, gives the children directions for their next presentation. During the year the students are taught discipline and social habits. After the program, the children helped serve refreshments.

Last night, an open house was held for parents of this year's class and for the parents and students in next year's class.

The graduating four-year-olds presented a program of songs and games which they had learned during the year. On display were many of the things they had made.

The school is sponsored by the Broadway Presbyterian Church, however, enrollment is not limited to members of this church and parents of four-year-olds are encouraged to enroll their children. Enrollment is on a first-come, first-served basis and a small tuition fee is charged. Mothers are asked to serve as assistants once or twice a month.

The parent membership holds regular meetings and speakers and programs are presented pertaining to childhood and education. This year psychologists have presented programs on the behavior of the four-year-old and films have been shown on play equipment for the four-year-old.

Interested parents may contact any of the board members.

About Town

Milton Finley, Otterville, was honored with a dinner Sunday in observance of his birthday. Hostess for the occasion was his wife.

Role of the Parents is Most Crucial

By Thomas J. and Alice Fleming
What do Henry Ford, John F. Kennedy and Ted Williams have in common?
A burning drive for achievement.

Were they born with it? Most people would say yes, accepting the same fatalistic attitude which has done so much to destroy talent in young people. But today, psychologists know that they are wrong. Achievers are not born, they are created by skillful, knowledgeable parents.

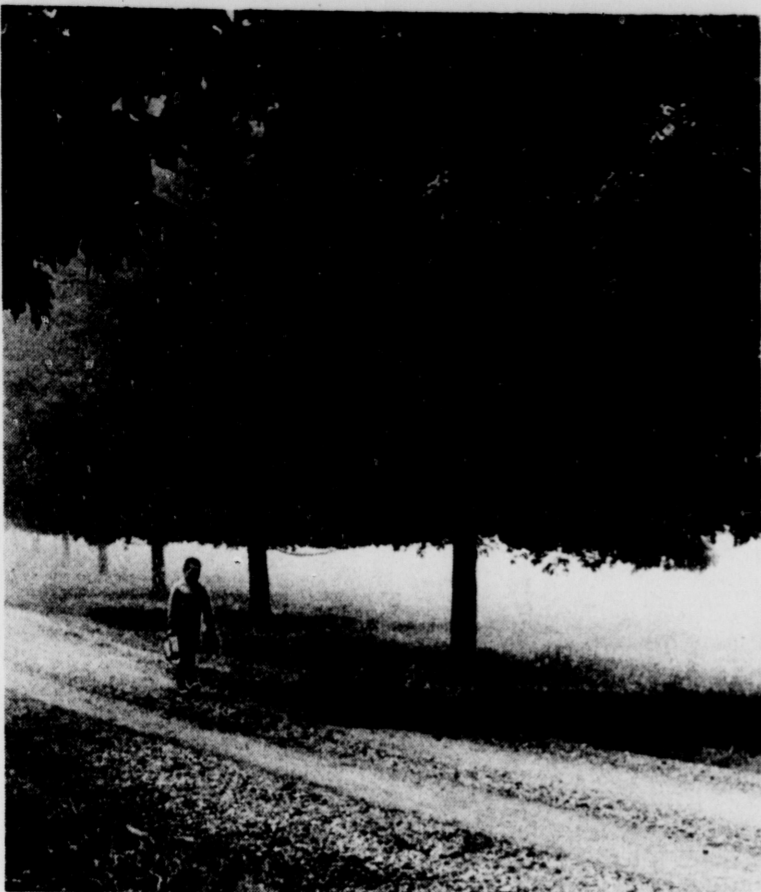

It hardly needs to be added that this achievement drive is as important to your child's future as his creativity drive. Without an achievement drive, the talented person has no central direction to his creativity, and fritters his energies away in aimless, undirected activity.

Once more, the crucial role of the parent in creating and maintaining high achievement drives comes into focus.

What can parents do? A great deal. M. R. Winterbottom of the University of Michigan examined the child-rearing practices of 30 middle class parents, who had sons aged eight to ten. She found that the mothers of boys with high achievement motivation (1) tended to set higher standards for their children, (2) expected independence and "mastery behavior" to occur at an earlier age than mothers of boys with low achievement motivation and (3) were more often emotionally rewarding. They kissed and hugged their sons when the boys did well more often than the nonachievers.

Parental Judgment
Almost invariably, mothers of high achievers placed fewer restrictions on their sons, and expected them to show mastery of various tasks, such as hanging up their clothes, at earlier ages than mothers of low achievers. The high achieving sons did not run wild by any means. Their mothers maintained a firm balance between discipline and freedom. But there was far more emphasis on doing than on not doing.

Judgment — sound common sense — is essential on the parents' part in evolving this

Needs Nurturing

Children should be given the opportunity to fulfill their creative potentials, each in their own individual way. Too often the school situation will be geared to the "average," with no provision for the unusual.

achievement atmosphere. Going to an extreme in either direction — too much restriction, or demanding too much self-reliance too early — tends to harm a child's achievement growth. The over-restricted child becomes dependent on adults to do his thinking for him. The child who is pushed too far too soon becomes defeated because he is given tasks beyond his strength and abilities. Equally dangerous are standards of excellence which are too low, or too high.

The Right Environment
By any and all methods that occur to you, try to create an environment that is constantly inclining your child to think achievement thoughts. At the same time, rigorously examine your own thinking and your child's thinking, to eliminate defeatist what-is-the-use-I'm-no-good attitudes. Encourage your child to think "can-do" thoughts, to "psych" himself, give himself mental pep-talks when he tackles anything, from a math test to a tryout for the football team. This may sound corny, but it works.

Especially important is the creation of an achievement spirit in the whole family. Encourage the children to compete with each other or their friends in spelling games, math games. Make winning fun, and for those who lose, a challenge to try harder the next time.

Continually search for additional ways to give your children achievement experiences outside the classroom. One of the key aspects of achievement experience is feed back — a visible reward for his successful effort — and this can be given to the child in many ways. If he is interested in science, buy him a disassembled radio, or some other scientific project. Putting it together, and seeing it work, is an excellent feedback experience. Encourage him to develop any and all non-academic talents — from running for office in the student government to selling ads for the school paper. The same "fostering" approach, balancing expectation and encouragement, should be applied here.

Role of the Father
Another important factor is the role of the father in influencing achievement motivation, especially in sons, but also in daughters. In New Haven, Professor Frank L. Strotbeck led a team of researchers on a door-to-door survey which studied 48 families intensively. They found that fathers who tended to dominate their sons through their teenage years — and thus deny their near-adult status — tended to produce low achievers. This was especially true in families where the father also dominated the mother, and had most of the power in the household. Far better, the researchers found, was to have a mother who was "relatively powerful." This family "democracy" tended to produce more independence and achievement motivation in the child.

Exther Dean Callard of Wayne State University recently reported in the Journal of Experimental Education the result of a study she conducted among 80 four-year-olds, in which she tested the relationship between mothers' expectancies regarding achievement, and the children's actual abilities. She found that mothers who tried to push a child by using punishment, denial and ridicule failed to produce achievement motivation in their sons and daughters. The key to success was the ability to be "supportive, to consider the feelings of the child, to work toward influencing attitude as well as behavior." The principle of avoiding extremes was graphically underscored. Low achievement motives were most visible among girls with highly controlling mothers and boys with mothers who insisted on granting independence too early.

Need For Discipline
Other researchers have noted the importance of discipline in the creation of achievement motivation among boys. One of the leading experts in this field, Urie Bronfenbrenner, has expressed serious concern about the tendency in many American families to treat boys and girls the same way. "The qualities of independence, initiative and self-sufficiency which are especially valued for boys in our culture, apparently require for their development a somewhat different balance of authority and affection than is found in the 'love-oriented' strategy characteristically applied with girls," he says. Bronfenbrenner fears that boys now run the risk of being "oversocialized" and thus losing some of their capacity for "aggressive accomplishment."

All of these factors should be absorbed and understood, and where necessary corrected. But the basic thing to remember is: achievement can be taught and parents are the best people to teach it.

Tomorrow: what to do if your child shows artistic ability.

Bell Company Is Sued By Shot Victim

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A man is suing Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for $1 million because he was shot while trying to enter the company's offices after closing time to pay his bill.

Thomas Michael Stephens, 29, was shot in the abdomen May 13 by an agent of the William J. Burns Detective Agency Inc. who was guarding the doors.

The prosecutor's office has declined to file a charge against the guard, Orville Dodson, because evidence indicated that Dodson fired after Stephens became abusive and advanced on him with a briefcase.

Stephens was in poor condition for several days, but now is in good condition.

Will Toughen Customs Against Drug Smugglers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Foreign visitors and returning American tourists will have a tougher time clearing customs, especially on the East and Gulf coasts, when a new government crackdown on narcotics smuggling begins about June 1.

The Customs Bureau is beginning the new effort as part of its intensified campaign against "hard" drugs—mainly heroin and cocaine.

Details are still in the discussion stage, but Asst. Treasury Department Secretary Eugene T. Rossides confirmed Monday the plan will go into effect with an "increase in enforcement intensity throughout the nation, with emphasis on the Northeast and Southeastern quadrants."

Coverage will extend as far west as New Orleans, he said, and presumably also will affect at least part of the Canadian border, although a Customs spokesman maintained it will be a uniform nationwide increase.

Treasury and Customs officials knew the program as "Operation Able" in its initial discussion stages, but Rossides is against such a name because it might be associated with Operation Intercept, the one-month effort to curtail marijuana smuggling across the Mexico border last fall.

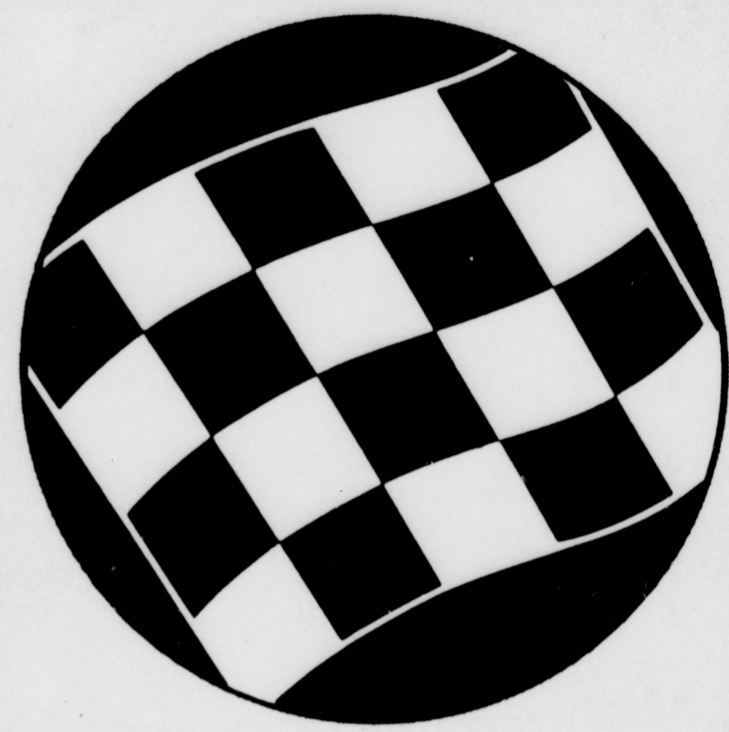

Intercept was changed to Operation Cooperation after the Mexican government and border businessmen complained it was hurting their business and tourism. The Mexicans agreed, however, to take tougher actions against marijuana growers and some officials in Treasury say that was its major goal.
